TREVOSE, PA (September 12, 2022) - Member Business Financial Services (MBFS), the business lending CUSO formed in 2008 that now services more than $2 billion in business loans and has partnered with over 80 credit unions nationwide, welcomes Craig Page as Chief Revenue Officer.

Page previously served as President/CEO for a business lending CUSO and has extensive experience in commercial real estate originations and risk management. He brings over twenty-five years of senior-level success across real estate, lending, and financial services industries to his new role at MBFS.

"I'm excited to be part of MBFS' executive team and look forward to shaping the strategic direction of the company as I develop a nationwide commercial real estate origination program that will benefit credit unions and their communities," says Page.

MBFS has doubled in size in recent years. Craig will be instrumental in assisting the CUSO in developing a nationwide presence in the loan origination and participation marketplace, while forming new credit union partnerships.

"I'm thrilled to have a well-respected CUSO executive like Craig join our team. We've gotten to know each other well over the past several years and I'm confident he will build on the strength of MBFS while bringing an entirely new skill set to our organization," says Mark Ritter, CEO of MBFS. "By deepening the bench of our team, we can ensure our growth is managed properly as we assist our credit union owners and partners."

About Us

MBFS assists credit unions in funding business loans within their market. The CUSO is headquartered in Bucks County, PA but works with credit unions nationwide through a remote workforce to provide loan servicing, portfolio management services, loan underwriting, coordination of loan participations, and preparation of loan documents. MBFS has grown to serve over 80 credit unions and services more than $2 billion in business loans. Learn more at www.mbfs.org.
