STATE OF THE STATES

State-Level Performance Measured 13 Ways Is Just The Beginning

The past year has been a good one for the movement as credit unions hit new highs in vital measures such as member growth and total assets. Lending is strong, and the industry's reputation only grows in contrast to revelations about consumer predation from Wells Fargo, for example, this time around.

This section of Callahan's annual Credit Union Directory offers a comprehensive look at how credit unions have performed as a group. You'll find statewide averages in key performance areas as well as a breakdown of 13 metrics for the largest credit unions in each state.

But that's just the beginning. The State of the States section is more than a geography lesson. Use it year-round to identify trends and better inform strategic decisions. For example, there are fewer credit unions today than at this time last year. Pennsylvania lost the most, 30, in the past 12 months but is still home to 449 member-owned financial services cooperatives, second only to Texas at 485.

Wyoming, Utah, and Idaho lead the nation in asset growth, posting year-over-year rates of 15.9%, 12.7%, and 12.6%, respectively.

No state had a net gain in credit unions in the past year, but the industry is hardly fading away. The credit movement topped $1 trillion in total assets this year. The average growth among all credit unions year-over-year as of second quarter 2016 was 7.4%, a healthy jump from 5.9% at this point in 2015. In these pages, you'll also learn that adjacent mountain states Wyoming, Utah, and Idaho lead the nation in asset growth, posting year-over-year rates of 15.9%, 12.7%, and 12.6%, respectively. They have 136 credit unions combined.

Which state is fourth? The non-mountainous but economically stable Iowa at 10.5%. It has 96 credit unions. The Hawkeye State also boasts three of the top five MSAs (metropolitan statistical areas) in terms of growth rates for first mortgage originations in 2015. The Waterloo-Cedar Falls MSA topped the chart with 44.8% growth. Cedar Rapids and Iowa City came in at numbers 6 and 7, respectively. And Dubuque was No. 16.

Member growth also has been a much-touted measure of success for credit unions nationwide. The industry grew to include more than 106 million members as of midyear 2016. That's an annual growth rate of 3.8%. Wyoming again was a leader in that metric, posting 9.0% growth over the past 12 months. Only three states had a net loss: Louisiana, New Jersey, and North Dakota.

North Dakota, in fact, ranked near the bottom in several measures thanks, in part, to the struggle within its boom-and-bust energy sector. At 1.38%, the state ranked third-highest in delinquency. Thrifty New Hampshire had the lowest delinquency rate as of June 30, at 0.36%.

Of course, "thrifty" is just an assumption. There are multiple factors driving these metrics, and they don't exist in isolation. These pages — like the rest of Callahan's Credit Union Directory — are intended to help inform tactical understanding as well as provide a paint-by-the numbers look at the nation's credit union movement.
