Callahan & Associates And Quantum Governance, L3C™ Unite to Advance Credit Union Governance

Washington, DC – Callahan & Associates, a leading provider in performance measurement, leadership development, strategic advisory, and community development for credit unions, is excited to announce the acquisition of Quantum Governance, a nationally recognized consulting firm specializing in governance and strategy.

The collaboration unites Callahan’s market-leading capabilities with Quantum Governance’s proven governance and strategy expertise. Together, the organizations will deliver enhanced services designed to strengthen leadership, improve governance, and foster innovation across the credit union movement.

“Governance is one of the most pressing challenges credit unions face today, and it’s an area where we’ve wanted to provide deeper support” said Jon Jeffreys, CEO at Callahan & Associates.

“Quantum Governance brings unmatched expertise in this space, making this partnership a natural extension of our leadership development practice. Their work is essential to helping boards and executives lead effectively, and we’re excited to combine our strengths to deliver even greater impact for credit unions.”

Quantum Governance will operate as a Callahan & Associates company, retaining its current staff and branding to ensure seamless continuity for their credit union and nonprofit clients. Founded over a decade ago by governance expert Michael Daigneault, this transition represents an important evolution in the firm’s original purpose to partner with mission-driven leaders to enhance governance and strategy effectiveness for exceptional outcomes.

“We are thrilled to be joining forces with Callahan & Associates to grow our mission and serve our clients with even greater access to industry platforms, data, and opportunities for new product development. We remain committed to meeting the evolving needs of credit union and nonprofit leadership -- both executives and volunteers.” said Quantum Governance CEO Jennie Boden.
